Prerequisites:

At least one SPMT or CONF course recommended

University Catalog Course Description:

Introduces the use of sport as a public diplomacy tool, including the interrelationships among conflict, collaboration, sport, organizations, and diplomacy.

Course Overview:

This course is designed to equip students with a unique and powerful understanding of how sports – a popular phenomenon across time and culture - can be used as a public diplomacy tool. Students will gain a comprehensive understanding of the ways in which sport is used to bring together people and states. They will study the interrelations of conflict, sport, and diplomacy in order to gain a foundational understanding of what is ‘sport diplomacy.’ Subsequently, students will trace various sport diplomacy initiatives across history, while learning to apply a critical lens to the topic; one that will be utilized to develop their own theories on the matter. Throughout the semester, students will participate in a broad range of activities: writing one final paper, participating in class discussions, debates, role-play, and an online reflection component. Throughout the scope of this course, students will be able to strengthen and gain key skills in research, critical thinking, global understanding, public speaking, and teamwork. Course will have its own number next year-SPMT 307

Learner Outcomes:

This course is designed to enable students to do the following:

1. Explore what is conflict, sport, and diplomacy and how they inter-relate.
2. Articulate the functions, complexities, and limitations of sport diplomacy.
3. Identify the international organizations (non-profit and for-profit) involved in sport diplomacy, analyze their role and evaluate their impact.
4. Recognize the theoretical underpinnings in sport diplomacy.
5. Develop a personal set of values and a philosophy of how sport can become a powerful tool of public diplomacy.
6. Develop effective theories of change that explain how sport can be utilized to impact relations, with an enhanced appreciation for the multi-cultural nature of the world.

Course Delivery:

Classes will be conducted 100% online via the Blackboard learning management system (LMS) housed in the MyMason portal. To log in to the Blackboard course site, students will use their Mason email name (everything before @masonlive.gmu.edu) and email password.

Technical Requirements:

To participate in this course, students will need to satisfy the following technical requirements:

- High-speed Internet access with a standard up-to-date browser, either Internet Explorer or Mozilla Firefox is required (note: Opera and Safari are not compatible with Blackboard).
- Students must maintain consistent and reliable access to their GMU email and Blackboard, as these are the official methods of communication for this course.
- Students may be asked to create logins and passwords on supplemental websites and/or to download trial software to their computer or tablet as part of course requirements.
- The following software plug-ins for PCs and Macs, respectively, are available for free download:
 - Adobe Acrobat Reader: <https://get.adobe.com/reader/>
 - Windows Media Player: <https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/help/14209/get-windows-media-player>
 - Apple Quick Time Player: www.apple.com/quicktime/download/

Expectations:

Course Week: Because asynchronous courses do not have a “fixed” meeting day, our week will start on Monday, and finish on Sunday.

Log-in Frequency:

Students must actively check the course Blackboard site and their GMU email for communications from the instructor, class discussions, and/or access to course materials at least 3 times per week.

Participation:

Students are expected to actively engage in all course activities throughout the semester, which includes viewing all course materials, completing course activities and assignments, and participating in course discussions and group interactions.

Technical Competence:

Students are expected to demonstrate competence in the use of all course technology. Students who are struggling with technical components of the course are expected to seek assistance from the instructor and/or College or University technical services.

Technical Issues:

Students should anticipate some technical difficulties during the semester and should, therefore, budget their time accordingly. Late work will not be accepted based on individual technical issues.

Workload:

Please be aware that this course is not self-paced. Students are expected to meet specific deadlines and due dates listed in the Class Schedule section of this syllabus. It is the student's responsibility to keep track of the weekly course schedule of topics, readings, activities and assignments due.

Instructor Support:

Students may schedule a one-on-one meeting to discuss course requirements, content or other course-related issues. Those unable to come to a Mason campus can meet with the instructor via telephone or web conference. Students should email the instructor to schedule a one-on-one session, including their preferred meeting method and suggested dates/times.

Netiquette:

The course environment is a collaborative space. Experience shows that even an innocent remark typed in the online environment can be misconstrued.

- Students must always re-read their responses carefully before posting them, so as others do not consider them as personal offenses.
- Be positive in your approach with others and diplomatic in selecting your words.
- Remember that you are not competing with classmates, but sharing information and learning from others.
- All faculty are similarly expected to be respectful in all communications.

Accommodations:

Online learners who require effective accommodations to insure accessibility must be registered with George Mason University Disability Services.

Honor Code:

George Mason shares in the tradition of an honor system that has existed in Virginia since 1842. The Honor Code is an integral part of university life. On the application for admission, students sign a statement agreeing to conform to and uphold the Honor Code. Students are responsible, therefore, for understanding the code's provisions. In the spirit of the code, a student's word is a declaration of good faith acceptable as truth in all academic matters. Cheating and attempted cheating, plagiarism, lying, and stealing of academic work and related materials constitute Honor Code violations. To maintain an academic community according to these standards, students and faculty must report all alleged violations to the Honor Committee. Any student who has knowledge of, but does not report, a violation may be accused of lying under the Honor Code. With this in mind, all students in this course are held to the strictest standards of the George Mason University Honor Code.

Instructor Expectations:

1. Complete your work: All assigned readings and/or assignments for each class is to be completed by the specified due dates. Every week we will build our understanding of sport diplomacy, so it's critical to complete assignments fully and in a timely manner.
2. Actively participate: Active participation is expected throughout the semester. This means approaching assignments with both curiosity and consistency. Remember that Sport Diplomacy is an entirely different way of looking at sport so there's much to learn and master!

3. Get organized: You will have multiple items due each week. Stay on top of what is due and when. Given the asynchronous nature of this course, you'll need to take charge and organize your schedule.

4. Stay connected. This class is 100% online, therefore make a concerted effort to communicate with the instructor and classmates through the assignments. If you're having trouble with content, technology, or simply need clarification, be sure to reach out!

5. Review University guidelines:

- Students must abide by the guidance as specified in the "Safe Return to Campus and Remote Learning Guidance for Students Enrolled in CEHD Courses". This document can be found under "Syllabus" on Blackboard.
- Students must abide by the Honor Code (see below), guided by the spirit of academic integrity.

Evaluation:

You are expected to actively participate and fulfill assignments in this course. Assignments must be submitted by the specified due date or no credit will be given. Only students with emergencies, documented medical excuses, or University sponsored functions (approved by the professor in advance) will be considered for exception. Please contact the professor for individual clarifications.
